Candidate Information Brief

About our Client

The Yard

The Yard community offers play and respite services for disabled children, young people and their families, both at their adventure play centres in the east of Scotland and through outreach in their communities. They design their services to support the whole family, building communities of peers through their welcoming culture of inclusion.

The Yard run early years, schools and family sessions, and youth clubs. In addition to play and family support, they offer expert training on play, inclusion, and disability. The Yard creates beautiful havens for play for disabled children, but even more than that, opportunities for fun, friendship, and community building. Support and a sense of belonging. Somewhere to feel safe to take risks.

A place of understanding without judgement.
A vital lifeline for whole families.

The Yard's culture of responsiveness, agility and a can-do attitude made them well placed to respond effectively to the continually shifting landscape of the pandemic and the last few years with solutions for their most vulnerable families. They continued to make a valuable contribution thanks to their team's resourcefulness, determination and courage, and their long-standing reputation for service excellence.

Their doors remained open throughout, adapting to changing guidance with stringent health and safety measures, improved systems to manage attendance, and an ever-resilient team ready to come up with new and exciting play experiences for the children who needed them most.

They worked alongside their local authority partners to support the most vulnerable families in small groups. They continued to support their members with video content, live Zoom sessions and over the phone.

The team continually adapted to be able to welcome more families in person as soon as permitted. Creating this hybrid approach of face-to-face and virtual support allowed them to meet the needs of as many families as possible, while retaining The Yard's role as a constant in their lives.

Parker's story

Parker had unsurprisingly struggled during the pandemic. A safe visit to The Yard has given him a positive sense of routine and structure to focus on. He is much happier and less anxious after our visit.

The staff at The Yard are just incredible. I feel they are more friends than employees of The Yard. The staff never make me feel bad or that I am not welcome because of any negative behaviour that has occurred in our duration of visits.

The staff also understand how to deal with Parker, which is a rare thing for me to trust in another person. They're just wonderful, they really are. Staff have offered to help me with Signalong anytime. They also play with the boys to their individual interests.

But what also makes the difference is that during our visits, the staff somehow find the time to chat to me. They understand if you just chat away and vent about how difficult it is. Bearing in mind especially through holidays it is very isolating. We may have families and friends but none truly understand the challenges we face.

You don't feel anxious about visiting like everywhere else on the planet. The Yard is a family without judgement.

And the staff never change. They are all wonderful at what they do. And truly we would be lost without it.

Our value proposition for funders and donors

Who we are

The Yard community offers play and respite services for disabled children and young people (from birth to age 25) and their families, at our adventure play centres in the east of Scotland and through outreach in our communities. We are unique in that our services are designed to support the whole family. We build communities of peer support through our welcoming culture of inclusion. The Yard delivers excellent quality services through our skilled, trained and experienced team of professionals.

Our services

The Yard runs early years services, schools and family sessions, and youth clubs (for ages 8-25). We also offer complementary therapies at many of our sessions.

In addition to play and family support, we offer expert training on play, inclusion and disability.

Our reach

In 2019, The Yard supported 1,908 families of disabled children across our three sites in Edinburgh, Dundee and Fife. Our schools sessions supported 849 children from over 90 schools. We also worked with 679 disabled children through holiday playschemes in Edinburgh.

The difference we make

Our group setting ensures we offer value for money, and support large numbers of children and families with high quality services at low cost. Overall social return on investment at The Yard is valued at over £30 for every £1 spent. Statutory services save over £10 for every £1 they invest in The Yard.

Our families tell us

The Yard's Edinburgh services are Care Inspectorate registered, and our excellent results reflect the high quality of care and support we provide. All areas are graded as 'Very good' or 'Excellent'. View our latest results on the Care Inspectorate website.

Our families tell us

"The Yard is a home. It is a place where you can be yourself and where you are accepted, a place where you can forget about diagnosis. I will never forget what The Yard meant to me when Lauren was younger, and what it still means to me today."

Our training offer

The Yard offers a programme of specialist training courses for play practitioners, individuals and organisations, covering understanding autism and behavioural challenges, disability awareness, communication methods and inclusive play

Problems we solve

Parents tell us they experience reduced stress, a sense of belonging and acceptance within our community, improved social networks, reduced social isolation, and are better informed with info and advice.

Young people tell us they have fun, make friends, share positive experiences, feel accepted and able to be themselves, learn life skills to become more independent, and tap into a long-term network of support.

Siblings tell us their parents have more time for them, they spend more time with their family as a whole, and become more understanding of difference.

What you can do for us

We rely on the generosity of donors and funders like you to provide sustainable funding for The Yard.

There are many other ways you can support us too.

- Support in kind by offering your skills and training
- Sign up to give a regular gift on our website or through payroll giving
- Volunteer for us
- Sign up to a personal or team challenge
- Introduce The Yard to your family, friends, contacts and online networks
- Nominate The Yard as your Charity of the Year
- Visit The Yard and experience the magic for yourself
- Leave a legacy for The Yard

How we are funded

We currently fundraise around 60% of our own income through trusts and foundations, corporate partnerships and community fundraising. Earned income and contract work makes up the remaining 40%, which is generated from Sunday Funday at The Yard Edinburgh, training, schools sessions, membership and through local authority contracts.

Our future

Our vision is one of safe and adventurous play opportunities for all disabled children and young people, and so The Yard continues to grow. We are building a new centre to house The Yard Dundee and developing services in the West of Scotland. We are also developing a new digital training platform to make our offer more accessible to practitioners and families.

The Role

Philanthropy Manager (Community & Events)

We are seeking a pro-active and highly motivated fundraising professional to drive forward our community & events fundraising at The Yard. You will work as part of a team helping to implement an effective fundraising strategy with a strong link to the income streams required to bring in funds from community sources and all events.

The Opportunity:

The Yard is an award-winning charity. Its flagship centre in Edinburgh was refurbished by BBC's DIY SOS The Big Build in 2012, followed by the opening of The Yard Dundee in 2015 and The Yard Fife in 2016.

The Yard offers a varied programme of drop-in, respite and transition youth clubs, early years, specialist sessions with schools, family play sessions, and inclusive play and disability training. At the heart of everything they do is child-led free play - take a look: www.youtube.com/watch?v=WSnjp4evoQQ

The team is currently comprised Director of Development, Senior Fundraising Manager, Partnerships Manager, Philanthropy Manager (Trusts & Grants), Development Assistant, Communications Manager and Communications Officer. You will report to the Senior Fundraising Manager and will line manage a new post that we are recruiting Development Assistant.

The Yard is growing, as they expand services in Dundee and potentially in Glasgow, it is a great time to join a wonderful charity and help them support more disabled children and young people and their families across Scotland.

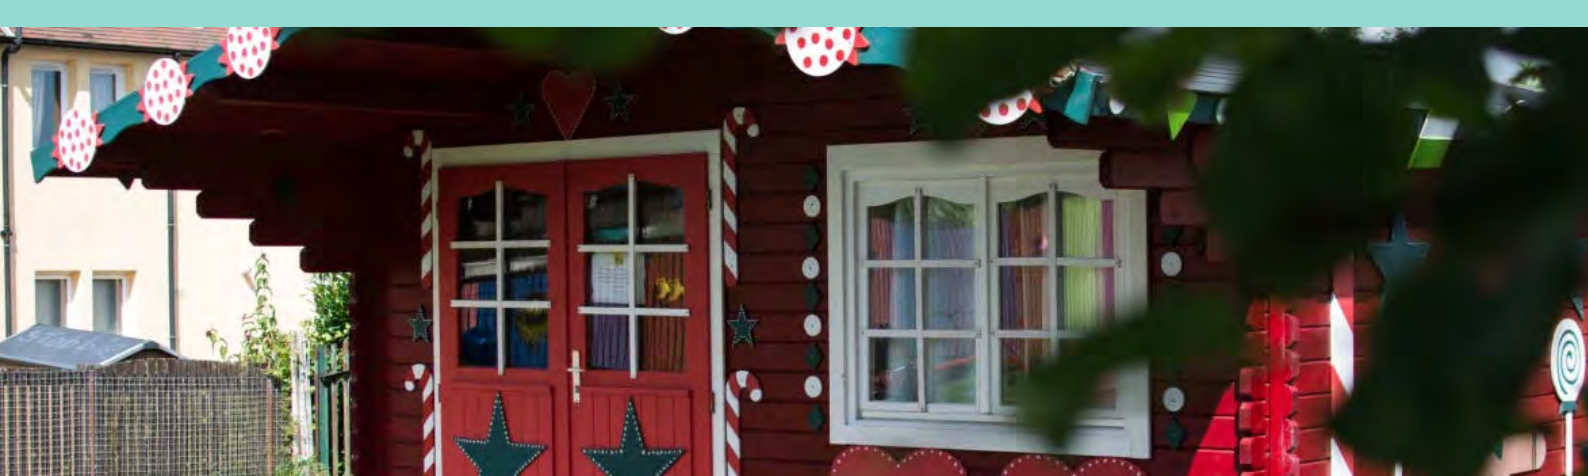

Your skills & attributes for success

You will have:

- Demonstrable experience of individual thought, analysis and working to time scales.
- At least four years' experience working in a role within a fundraising environment with proven success in meeting financial targets.
- Excellent oral and written communication skills.
- Excellent interpersonal skills, with a positive attitude and a friendly, approachable manner.
- Excellent organisational skills.
- Ability to work effectively as part of a team.
- A passion to provide superb stewardship to funders.
- A willingness to carry out any other ad hoc duties required.
- A driving license, although not a requirement would be beneficial.

This post will be subject to a Disclosure Scotland check.
